The world's best para surfers put their elite talent on display on the second day of competition at the 2020 AmpSurf ISA World Para Surfing Championship in La Jolla, USA.

Despite a flurry of uncharacteristic rain showers in southern California, competitors let their surfing shine through on the international stage.

The 2016 and 2017 Team World Champion Brazil built on their momentum earned on day 1, with all-around excellent performances from multiple surfers.
